Dear DGR,

It is critical to the economic success and employment prospects of Australians to put legislative policies in place to put a stop to individuals and groups who are notorious for conducting dangerous illegal protests, putting themselves and others in harm's way and risking police and other services lives. The actions also waste the time and resources of the emergency workers who have to remove illegal protesters which could be better spent on real issues facing the Australian economy and people in need.

I strongly support:

- All environmental charities should be regularly reviewed to make sure they are abiding by the law.
- Any environmental protest group that breaks the law should immediately have their DGR status revoked. Taxpayers should not subsidise illegal protests by anti-mining groups.
- To be eligible for DGR status, the primary purpose of an environmental charity should be 'on-ground' work that improves the local environment.

Yours sincerely

Dr Keith Jonson BA, MA, PhD
