

I support the establishment of a postal bank

I want to add my voice to the recommendation that the Federal Government establish a postal bank of the kind argued for by the Citizens Party. I will not offer a rationale here, because that has been elegantly and cogently presented by the Citizens Party itself. It would be difficult to argue that a postal bank of that kind is NOT an appropriate means of addressing the banking needs of regional Australians.

I am not a member of any political party but I do vote according to my assessment of the policies and achievements of the contestants.
