Thank you for the opportunity to provide feedback on the recently released draft legislation on the experience adviser pathway.

I am an adviser of 23 year standing, with a clean record and have completed all statutory requirement including the Advisers Exam . The main reason am I still in the industry is the reliance on the undertakings made by Stephen Jones in relation to this experienced adviser pathway . I have completed all required professional development and formal education that has been asked of me.

Given the additional client workload I have now ,( in no small part due to the many advisers resigning and retiring around me), I find myself in a position of working harder than ever. I am not complaining, but the additional workload of four(4) bridging courses would be a very heavy imposition on my time and energy . A decision I would need to give much thought to

So I fully support the draft legislation as presented .
